

Located in the heart of Belgravia, West London, Tomtom is a quintessential English Coffee House and Wine Bar with a strong traditional design style. T&G timber panelling, butchers block counters and reclaimed timber flooring compliment the stunning Grade II Listed Victorian building rich in historical character.

A very small unit, the challenge was to maximise customer areas, whilst still providing optimum operation space. An eclectic mixture of vintage furniture and light fittings were sourced to work in harmony with the overall design.

Being a Listed Building, extensive consultation and negotiation was required with the Conservation Planning Officers to design a solution for the shopfront to allow ventilation and heating plant to be installed within the unit. The end solution formed from bespoke cast iron grilles is so discreet that it looks like part of the original architecture.
