

This Grade II Listed former Stone Masons workshop and residency in West Hampstead, London received a sympathetic refurbishment and transformation into the ultimate grand family home.

Working closely with the Local Authority Conservation Officers and English Heritage, the striking and highly detailed facade was fully restored to its former glory. The rear workshops and out buildings were completely demolished and replaced with a contemporary annex which included a gym, sauna and a mezzanine area, including a separate staff apartment.

This project combined a number of our services which including interior design, architecture, planning control and much more. The result was a transformation into a modern dwelling whilst retaining the character that the 19th century building deserved.
